THE ALABAMA ARRESTS.

THE TENNYSON OBSEQUIES. Laying the Bard's Remains in the P Corner, Westminster Abbey.

LONDON, Oct. 12.-Throughout the night the oody of Lord Tennyson lay in St. Faith's Chapel, Westminster Abbey, the union jack covering the coffin and a few trails of ivy, placed there by Hallam Tennyson, lying loosely over it. It transpires that the volume of Shakespeare which Tennyson read on his deathbed was placed within the coffin before the body was taken from Aldworth.

There was no vigil at the bier of the great poet during the night. The coffin lay in dark-ness, save for the feeble rays from a gas lamp in the neighboring street which flickered weirdly through the stained windows. The door was locked when the family left after the coffin had been deposited in the chapel last evening. So it remained until the opening of the abbey today, when the vergers arrived and stood guard at the sacred entrance, awaiting stood guard at the sacred entrance, awaiting the moment when the coffin should be borne to the altar trestle. It was a frosty autumnal morning, the rising sun breaking through a haze of fiery red. Soon after daylight people began to gather around the door of the north nave, to which admission was to be free for the public, and four hours before the time for opening the door the neighborhood of this entrance was throughd. It was borhood of this entrance was thronged. It was noticeable that all were dressed in black and many in deep mourning. Sorrow as if for a personal friend was depicted upon all counten-ances as the lovers of the pure-minded poet stood patiently awaiting admission to take part in the last honors of his earthly remains. Meanwhile holders of tickets of invitation were arriving and being ushered into the broad sanctuary opening into the abbey, and long before the ceremony began the historic edifice was crowded. Outside thousands lingered unable to obtain entrance, yet unwilling to depart from near the spot where an event of such mournful interest to the nation and to mankind was in progress.

The assemblage in the abbey was a distinguished one. The premier of England, Mr. Gladstone, was represented by Hon. Arthur Lyttleton, the Prince of Wales by Gen. Probyn of his household, the Duke of Edinburgh by his private secretary, Hon. Wm. James Colville, the Duke of York, heir presumtive, by Sir Francis Winton, and the British government by Hon. H. H. Asquith, the home secretary. Walter Besant and many other prominent men of letters were present.

The scene was most impressive. The abbey choir was covered with a rich hanging of purple velvet. The nave was lined on both sides with orphan boys from the home founded by Gen. Gordon, an institution in which Tennyson took a marked sympathetic interest. The boys wore a modified Scotch uniform and carried them-a modified Scotch uniform and carried themselves with military precision.

At noon the sun burst out in full splendor from the haze which had hitherto partially obscured its rays, and the interior of the abbey was gloriously illumined, bringing out all the beauties of the sculpture and carving. A moment later Sir Henry Ponsonby, the queen's private secretary, entered St. Faith's Chapel, and on behalf of her majesty placed a beautiful wreath upon the coffin. Sir Henry then proceeded to the dean of Westminster's stall, where he sat as representative of the queen. The waiting audience in the abbey, and all eyes waren directed to the spot. First appeared the officiating clergy, then the coffin, which bore only the wreaths controlled by the queen and members of the family. The pall was an ordinary union jack. It was borne on the ordinary union jack. It was borne on the right hand by Lord Salisbury, the late premier, Earl Selborne, Lord Rosebery, minister of foreign affairs; Lord Arthur Kelvin, Weh Lecky, the historian, and Henry Montagu Butter, D.D., master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and on the left by the Duke of Argyll, Earl Dufferin, Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American legation, Sir James Paget, Benjamin Jewett, master of Balliol College, Oxford, and James Anthony Froude, the historian.

Immediately behind the coffin walked the poet's son, Hallam Tennyson, with his wife and hildren, and some intimate friends of the children, and some intimate friends of the family.

The procession passed through the cloisters and the nave to the altar, where the coffin was placed upon trestles and the religious ceremony was conducted, the archbishop of Canterbury officiating, assisted by the dean and canons. Amon'g the many noticed in the triforum during the services were Edward Terrill, American minister to Belgium; Samuel R. R. Thayer, American minister to the Netherlands; ex-Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont; Dr. Nevin, lately resident in Rome, and Andrew Carnegie, Joseph Choat, representing Harvard College; Mr. Emerson of Boston, a nephew of the late Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Mrs. White, wife of the secretary of the Ameri-Mrs. White, wife of the secretary of the American legation.

As the body was carried into the abbey the

As the body was carried into the abbey the music by Croft and Purcell was sung in the processional parts of the burial service. As the procession paused was chanted the psalm beginning "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." As the words "In the evening it is cut down and withered" came from their lips the stillness of the abbey was broken by low sobs from the family of the dead The lesson was followed by the singing of "Crossing of the Bar" and another anthem with the words of an unpublished poem from Tenny-

The last anthem sung was "Silent Voices," written but not published by Tennyson and set to music by his wife. It contains ten lines of exquisite beauty, closing with these words:

"Call me farther, silent voices, Forward to the starry track, Glimmering up the heights beyond me, On and always on."

At the grave Dean Bradley said the prayer, the collect and the benediction and the great crowd dispersed as the notes of the "Dead March from Saul" sounded through the abbey. There was no procession from the abbey at the close of the service. Westminster Abbey has hardly seen a funeral Westminster Abbey has hardly seen a funeral so representative as the one today. It was as if the grief of all classes of the civilized world, music, art, literature, labor and statesmanship, was represented by their great men. Henry Irving, with his best known colleagues; John Burns, with the socialists and labor agitators; cabinet ministers and ex-cabinet ministers, royal academicians, the poets of whom the dead poet was the chief, and men from England's greatest mercantile houses were crowded together, elbow to elbow.

The flowers came from persons of all classes in Great Britain, the continent and the United States. The queen's last tribute was three wreaths, one bearing the words, "A mark of sincere regard from Victoria."

NEW YORK'S REGISTRATION. Republicans.

New York, Oct. 12.—The great parade is taking all the attention of the politicians today and they are almost forgetting that less than four weeks of the campaign remains. The chief subject of interest is the very satisfactory chief subject of interest is the very satisfactory results of yesterday's registration. It showed some 15,000 less in New York than on corresponding occasions, and it is observed that the falling off is on the democratic side. The republicans came out promptly and showed great carnestness in getting their people at the registration places while the democrats appeared to be indifferent. In Brooklyn there was an increase in the registration, but the republicans held their own. There is great encouragement in the republican side today. Deputy Creekmoore then hurried to this city and telegraphed U. S. Marshal Yoes at Fort Smith to send deputies. Yoes wired: "Have wired everywhere for deputies. You will have lots of help tonight. Hold the fort by all means and get him this time."

Creekmore also summoned a lot of men, including the marshal and high sheriff. Christie's home is a verifable fort having been built.

DEMOCRATS INDORSE ANDREWS. They Will Not Nominate Another Candidate for the Chief Justiceship. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.-Judge Andrews of Nzw York, Oct. 12.—Judge Andrews of Syracuse, the republican nominee for chief justice of the court of appeals, has been endorsed by the democratic state committee. The nomination was made by W. A. Kirk of Syracuse and seconded by Bourke Cockran.

Judge Andrews' nomination was also seconded by District Attorney Ridgeway on behalf of the Kings county democrats. Mr. Ridgeway made a speech referring to the fact that Judge Andrews was nominated by the democrats in 1884. The nomination was then made unanimous.

A letter was read from Judge Wheeler H. Peckham, who was himself a candidate for the office. In his letter Judge Peckham stated that if the republicans had decided to recognize Judge Andrews' twenty-five years of service on the bench by nominating him the democrats could not do better than indorse him.

So many wreaths and other floral tributes had been sent to the abbey that it was impossible to find room for them with the coffin. They were placed in the Jerusalem chamber and were found to amount to several wagon loads. Only a few of the most choice or appropriate designs were applied near the grave.

They claim that their people were in full possession of these lands before any white man came into the country, and that they should have the same rights on the unsurveyed lands as the white man.

Gen. McCook says that a conflict with the Navajoes would be a serious matter. There are 16,102 of them, and they are well armed. They own 118,798 head of horses, 1,500,000 sheep and 9,000 head of cattle. The tribe is self-support-a refugee from the civil authorities. His escapades, the general says, have caused much anxiety to white people living near the border of the White mountain reservation, as well as to the Indians who live upon it. It seems that this Indian killed many persons during May and June last, but several scouting expeditions sent out to capture him and every plan and device put in operation to entrap this wily savage failed. He eluded them all.

Tarlegour. I. T., Oct. 12.—An attempt was made at daylight yesterday to capture the notorious Ned Christie at his home in the Caney mountains, 15 miles east of hera. The attacking party was composed of Deputy U. S. Marshal Milo Creekmoore, David Rush, Chas. Copeland and D. C. Dye, with three posses.

The house was surrounded and the presence of the officers was unknown until the call for surrender was made. The only answer was a volley of bullets, one of which struck John Fields in the neck, inflicting a mortal wound, and another struck Joseph Bowers, disabling him.

When it was found that Christie would not surrender the officers then warned the women and children to come out of the house, which they did and were placed under arrest. The marshal then set fire to the outbuilding in hopes that the flames would communicate to the house in which Christie was taking refuge, but this failed. favorable to Mr. Cleveland and I am not uneasy about the result. The republicans have shown very few signs of recovery from the terrible defeat in 1890. So many of my republican friends in Congress were telling me last winter how there had been a reaction and that they would carry a lot of southern states. North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Arkansas and others—until I asked why they did not include Kentucky and make the sweep complete. The elections in Georgia, Florida and Arkansas and the obvious condition of affairs throughout the south show how vain were their hopes and that the expected reaction is not coming. I have been in New York and hear from there quite regularly. Prospects were brightening have been in New York and hear from there quite regularly. Prospects were brightening up for the democrats when I was there and letters and reports received show that the situation has been steadily improving. I feel no hesitation in predicting that Cleveland will carry New York by 30,000 majority. I think his majority will be between 30,000 and 40,000.

McCook has submitted a plan to the Indian bureau providing for the withdrawal of all the Indians to places selected for them where they may find water and pasturage. It is proposed to have these places selected on account of their adaptability to irrigation.

Gen. McCook prefaces his report with a tribute to the devotion to duty and the intelligence displayed by the officers of his command. On the part of the enlisted men, the trials by courtemartial have decreased, but a slight increase has occurred in the trials by summary court. Gen. McCook dwells at length in his report upon the Indian depredations in his department and particularly on the conduct of "The Kid," a San Carlos Apache Indian and a refugee from the civil authorities.
